ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

A research gap is more than something missing in the literature—it is an opportunity to ask a better question, build stronger evidence and create research that matters. This workshop will help participants move from identifying a meaningful research gap to developing focused research questions, establishing novelty and significance, and positioning research for meaningful academic and practical impact.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Research Scholars

Faculty Members

Postgraduate Students

Ph.D. Aspirants

Academicsians

Researchers in Computer Science and Allied Disciplines

FROM RESEARCH GAP TO RESEARCH IMPACT

KEY FOCUS AREAS

- Identifying and articulating a genuine research gap
- Distinguishing a research gap from a broad research problem
- Converting the gap into clear research questions and objectives
- Aligning research questions, methodology, evidence and outcomes
- Establishing novelty, significance and contribution
- Moving from research findings towards meaningful research impact

WHY ATTEND?

- Strengthen your ability to identify meaningful research opportunities.
- Learn to formulate sharper and more defensible research questions.
- Understand how novelty and significance are established.
- Connect research design and evidence with potential impact.
- Gain a clearer pathway from research gap to research contribution.
